SOCHE Partners with Miami Valley Nonprofit Collaborative for New Leadership Development Program

May 13 (Dayton, Ohio) – The Strategic Ohio Council for Higher Education (SOCHE) is pleased to announce a partnership with Miami Valley Nonprofit Collaborative \(MVNC\) to present the 2024-25 SOCHE Leadership Development Program.

This special 8-session hybrid, interactive program is designed to develop the leadership skills in new or experienced front-line higher education personnel who supervise other staff members. Individual contributors seeking advancement into management roles will find this program helpful in developing the skills required for effective leadership within their organizations.

At each workshop, participants will receive tools, resources and templates that can be readily applied back in their organizations. All workshops are presented by leadership development experts, sourced by MVNC. A full leadership development improvement plan is provided at the end of the program, along with resources to support participants' ongoing growth.

“We are so excited to work with MVNC to host this comprehensive leadership development program for higher education personnel throughout Ohio,” said SOCHE president Dr. Cassie Barlow. “This program will provide valuable career advancement guidance to all the learners who participate. We’re looking forward to producing a cohort of newly empowered leaders.”

Registration for the program includes: Myers Briggs Personality Indicator and CliftonStrengths assessments; course materials; a personalized leadership development plan; six interactive virtual workshops; and two in-person sessions with lunch, learning, and networking time.
